Representatives from Naval Station (NS) Guantanamo Bay's Ocean Enterprises, Reef Raiders and Port Operations conducted a SCUBA safety stand down and registration review in the Bulkeley Hall auditorium, Sept. 6-9.

The safety stand down was held to re-enforce the naval station's policies and guidelines for recreational SCUBA divers.

During the stand down, recreational SCUBA diving was suspended Sept. 6-11 and divers were not allowed to file a dive plan with Port Operations until they had received the required safety training.

"We have had some serious brushes with recreational diving related incidents," said NS Guantanamo Bay's Command Master Chief, CMDMCM(SW/EXW/AW) J.D. McKinney. "We believed there was a need to temporarily stop diving at GTMO to get everyone on the same page with diving safety and the naval station's recreational diving regulations."

All recreational scuba divers must complete a training session to be authorized for diving.

DOD Elevates Force Protection Condition for U.S. Naval Installations During 9/11 Anniversary

MC2(SW/AW) Justin Alles
Gazette Editor

All U.S. Naval installations were directed to elevate their Force Protection Condition (FPCON) to "BRAVO" Sept. 4.

Department of Defense (DOD) officials ordered the elevated FPCON status as a precautionary measure, prior to the tenth anniversary of the Sept. 11, 2001 terrorist attacks.

BRAVO (more predictable threat exists) will remain in effect throughout the Sept. 11 weekend to increase the security posture within the armed forces.

Base residents traveling to military installations during heightened FPCON levels should be aware of increased antiterrorism measures.

"Travelers can expect an additional law enforcement presence, additional baggage checks and additional checkpoints," said NS Guantanamo Bay Antiterrorism Officer, Master at Arms Chief Petty Officer Eduardo Perez. "Travelers are encouraged to arrive at airports earlier than required in anticipation for unexpected delays," said Perez.

FPCON's are DOD standardized identifications, recommended preventive actions and responses to terrorist threats against U.S. personnel and facilities.

"Base residents should never stop being aware of their surroundings and always report suspicious activity to law enforcement," said NS Guantanamo Bay Assistant Antiterrorism Officer, Master at Arms 2nd Class Stephen Caezza. "If traveling, residents should always abide with the additional security requirements, which may seem like an inconvenience however, a small price to pay."

Caezza said FPCON's are designed to prevent, protect, detect and deter against terrorist incidents.

"The security of the installation should not just rest on the shoulders of the Security department, but should be the personal responsibility of everyone on the island," said Caezza.

The normal FPCON for NS Guantanamo Bay is Bravo as directed by United States Southern Command (SOUTHCOM).

Service Members Receive Domestic Abuse Awareness Training

The Fleet and Family Support Center (FFSC) at Naval Station (NS) Guantanamo Bay, Cuba presented the annual Navy Domestic Abuse Awareness and Prevention General Military Training (GMT) at the FFSC training room, Sept. 6-8.

In accordance with Operational Navy Instruction 1752.2B, service members received awareness and prevention training on what constitutes domestic abuse, the impact of domestic abuse on families, risk avoidance and personal responsibility.

"Domestic violence is not just a private family matter," said NS Guantanamo Bay FFSC Domestic Abuse Victim Advocate (DAVA), Carol Leaphart. "Abuse is a crime with serious repercussions for loved ones, children, and the entire community."

Leaphart said domestic violence can involve threats, forced isolation, and abusive physical contact, and is rarely a one-time occurrence.

"The more information people know about domestic abuse, the more they may be able to help someone who is going through it," said Leaphart.

"As DAVA, I want people to know, whether on this base or another installation, there is a coordinated response prepared in the event of domestic violence to keep them safe and protected."

Leaphart said anyone experiencing domestic violence should call the National Domestic Violence Hotline (800-799-SAFE), or speak with a counselor or victim advocate at the FFSC.

Carol Leaphart, Domestic Abuse Victim Advocate provides service members Domestic Abuse Awareness Training at the Fleet and Family Support Center. The training was conducted from Sept. 6-8.

Where Were You on September 11, 2001?

At 7 a.m., on Sept. 11, 2001, I rolled into the print shop at Naval Nuclear Power Training Command in Charleston, SC. I recall wondering if I would be able to cut out early to get in a round at the base golf course.

At around 9:40 a.m. we had all the printing equipment running when somebody stuck his head through the door and said, "Somebody just flew a plane into one of the twin towers."

I remember thinking that they must have been talking about a small personal plane like a Cessna as I responded, "Sounds like some drunken tourist must have lost it," and I turned around and went back to work.

Over the next 30 minutes or so people continued coming into the shop wild-eyed and talking about a plane crash in New York City. We didn't have a television in the shop so I figured I better head down the hall and figure out what was going on.

As I passed through the door in my Chief's office I glanced at his television and was horrified. The second plane hit the second tower.

My Chief didn't even blink as he look up from his desk at me and said, "The twin towers have been hit and we think they may have hit the Pentagon too. They are saying there might be another plane out there too. We don't know who is doing this, but it has got to be terrorists."

He then told me to get my shop secured and get out of here quickly. "They are standing up the security response team and something tells me they aren't going to need any Lithographers to lock this place down."

It hit me...The nuke school could be a prime target.

So I locked up my space and headed home still not sure just what was going on.

Once I made it back to my apartment, I turned on the TV and there it was...video of the tragedy that was unfolding. I was mortified by what I was seeing.

Whatever news agency I had tuned into already had the events of a day on a journalistic loop mixed in with live video from Washington D.C. and New York. I don't specifically remember what the broadcasters were saying other than there was lots of speculation and varying bits of information about other planes that could be missing.

Then the towers fell.

Watching them crash onto themselves in a huge plume of smoke and ash, people running away in terror...I began to cry.

"This can't be happening," I thought as I slumped back onto the couch. "This kind of thing doesn't happen in America."

New Uniform Regulation For Sailors Announced

Chief of Naval Personnel

Public Affairs

The Navy announced future regulation changes for female Sailors carrying handbags and nuclear weapons security insignia for enlisted personnel assigned to special weapons facilities in a message released Aug. 30.

The changes, approved by the Chief of Naval Operations and announced in NAVADMIN 260/11, go into effect for handbags Oct. 30 and for nuclear weapons security breast insignia next year.

The NAVADMIN also included an update on the service dress khaki uniform. Prototype designs are authorized for wear until Oct. 1, 2011, and an approved uniform is projected to be available for purchase by September 2012.

Female Sailors may carry handbags purchased from civilian sources as long as the handbags meet the following specifications:

They must be plain black, brown or white grain leather or synthetic leather. Exotic materials are not authorized.

Bags must be rectangular, 7.5-14 inches long, 5.5-11 inches high and 2-4 inches deep.

Flaps must be magnetic or zippered, with brass-plated, silver, or gold colored closures.

A strap must be of the same material as its purse, with brass-plated, silver, or gold colored buckles.

Decorative stitching, embossed designs, visible ornamentation and manufacturers' logos are not allowed.

The new nuclear weapons security breast insignia is expected to be available in Aug. 2012 from Navy Exchange uniform centers. This insignia is a 1.25-inch by 1-inch silver shield - metal for service uniforms and embroidered for authorized working uniforms - with a trident surrounded by an atom symbol.

The shield signifies the security mission. The atom symbol signifies the strategic mission.

At the bottom of the shield, there is a scroll with five openings on which stars can be mounted to indicate years of creditable service in the nuclear weapons security mission.

Without stars, the scroll indicates one year of service in the mission. One to three gold stars indicate two to four years of service, and a silver star indicates five.

Billy Gibson, Bluzapalooza lead vocalist, entertains base residents while singing a musical blend of original and top Blues hits at NAVSTA GTMO's Windward Ferry Landing. The band performed from Sept. 3 as part of MWR's Labor Day weekend celebration.

Naval Station (NS) Guantanamo Bay, Cuba's Morale Welfare and Recreation department (MWR) and Armed Forces Entertainment presented "Bluzapalooza" at the Windward Ferry Landing, Sept. 3, on base.

The outdoor-festival which included live 'Blues' music, barbecue and a craft fair was provided to base residents as part of NS Guantanamo Bay's Labor Day weekend celebration.

"I think it's important for the community to have a variety of activities," said MWR Community Activities Director Amiee MacDonnell. "This event offers a different style of entertainment for the families at GTMO."

The Bluzapalooza music tour headlined Billy Gibson, Beale Street Entertainer of the Year and 2009 Blues Music Award Instrumentalist of the Year.

MacDonnell said over thirty resident vendors were also on hand, displaying a variety of crafts including homemade jewelry, photography, and souvenirs.

"Offering a diverse style of music for the community is a great opportunity for MWR," said MacDonnell. "We typically feature rock, country and pop artists, and to provide a night of Blues makes for an enjoyable and unique experience."

In addition to Billy Gibson, Bluzapalooza which was created by Blues producers Steve Simon and John Hahn, included other notable Blues artist hailing from Memphis, Tenn.

At some point I fell asleep on my couch. I woke up in my pitch black apartment to the sound of accelerating jet engines and bright lights coming through the living room window.

I sat up straight terrified. One of the pieces of information I had gotten from the news was that all commercial air travel around the country had been grounded.

"This can't be happening," I thought.

Then I remembered that my apartment was in the flight path for military cargo flights that operated out of Charleston Air Force Base.

For the rest of the evening there were periodic flights that flew over my place and flooded the living room with their lights. Rationally, I knew that these aircraft were ok and weren't going to come crashing down on my apartment. But thinking rationally didn't keep the hair on my arms from crawling or the pit in my stomach from churning every time a plane flew over. I was terrified.

At some point during that horrible evening my terror turned to anger. The idea that someone could fill me with fear while in the comfort of my home in downtown U.S.A. was unacceptable.

I knew that as a Navy Lithographer I was never going to drop any bombs or fire any missiles. I also knew that our country was going to respond and that I was going to do whatever a Navy Lithographer could do to see that this never happens again.

The terrorist attacks on Sept 11, 2011 changed our country forever. To this day service members and civilians are working tirelessly to end the threat of extremists who threaten our very way of life.

I have many memories over the last 10 years, but the images of September 11, 2001 are by far the most vivid.

On Sept. 11, 2011 I am going to take a moment to remember where I was 10 years ago when the attacks took place. I am going to take a bit of time to think about the victims who lost their lives that day and the dedicated professionals who have sacrificed so much to keep us safe from those who would do us harm.

Chaplain's Corner

We have seen the pictures, viewed the films, and we have watched the nation grieve. Some of us have even stood in the deep foundations where the once two magnificent towers of the World Trade Center stood and watched two huge lights beam into the sky. Some of us even remember years earlier when they stood on the observation deck on the South Tower and thought maybe one day they would bring their family there to view the great city of New York. Others recall the day from their ships and others from military posts throughout the world. Certainly there is much to remember on that momentous day in September when the clear skies turned into chaos. Almost all of us have our own story of where we were and what we were doing when we first heard of the planes that went down into the Pentagon, the Pennsylvania field and the Twin Towers in lower Manhattan. Today, ten years later we remember in somberness, but also in hopefulness. Places that have been wounded are in the process of healing and some have made great strides in recovery. Certainly, scars will always remain like the craters and rubble that was left over, the memorial benches in the Pentagon's garden, and the felt loss of those who died. Now as you remember 9.11 take a moment and say a prayer for those who have lost so much, a prayer for our military, our enemies, and for peace.

TRADOC Rock Plays For GTMO Residents

Gazette Editor

The Morale, Welfare and Recreation (MWR) department at Naval Station (NS) Guantanamo Bay, Cuba presented the U.S. Army Training and Doctrine Command (TRADOC) band "TRADOC Rock" at three venues on base, Sept. 7-9.

TRADOC Rock, comprised of Army service members from Fort Eustis, Va., was brought to the base by MWR to entertain the community.

"Our mission is to provide support for troops and their families," said Lead Vocalist Army Staff Sgt. Patricia Conyers. "Playing music for those service members and their families who endure long training days while being deployed down range is a huge honor for us."

TRADOC Rock provided the audience with a musical blend of Top 40, R&B, Country and Pop hits.

Conyers said TRADOC Rock is dedicated to providing support for the U.S. Army's recruiting and community relations efforts, while entertaining audiences across the country.

"It's very important for us to provide entertainment to the residents of GTMO," said Conyers. "When you're isolated on an island, it's important to have some variety, and we're here to provide a taste of home."

TRADOC develops the Army's Soldier and Civilian leaders, and designs, develops, and integrates capabilities, concepts and doctrine in order to build an Army that is a versatile mix of tailorable, adaptable, and networked organizations operating on a rotational cycle for Full Spectrum Operations; Support the Army's Human Capital Core Enterprise and sustain the All-Volunteer Force.

Army Staff Sgt. Patricia Conyers, TRADOC Rock Lead vocalist, entertains base residents while singing a musical blend of Top 40, R&B, Country, and Pop hits at NAVSTA GTMO's Tiki Bar. The band performed from Sept. 7-9 at venues throughout the base.
