Chief Petty Officers (CPO) and First Class Petty Officers (FCPO) attached to Naval Station (NS) Guantanamo Bay, Cuba participated in a softball game at Cooper Field, Sept. 30, on base.

The game was held in support of Master Chief Petty Officer of the Navy (MCPON) Rick West's year-round, Navy-wide "CPO-365" program, which is designed to enhance training, build teamwork and engage FCPO's as they strive to become CPO's.

"This is a chance to get our FCPO's to feel as if we are preparing them to enter the CPO Mess," said NS Guantanamo Bay Command Master Chief J.D. McKinney. "The 'CPO-365' program is an opportunity for Chiefs to interact and mentor FCPO's outside of the workplace so they can learn how Chiefs do business."

McKinney said phase one of MCPON West's "CPO-365" program began Sept. 17. During this phase, Command Master Chiefs utilize CPO leadership to train FCPO's on their expectations as well as perform fitness and nutritional assessments of all FCPO's to develop a personal training plan that will foster sound physical readiness.

"FCPO's are also encouraged to participate in community service events with CPO's including CPO runs in conjunction with local road races/fun runs, and contribute to other community relations efforts such as facilities and landmark restoration projects," said McKinney.

Phase one also involves periodic CPO/FCPO/Wardroom combined teambuilding events, training at Fleet Family Support Center (FFSC) and Navy and Marine Corps Relief Society offices, and sponsor and indoctrination, mentorship, Perform to Serve, Navy Equal Opportunity, and heritage training sessions.

GTMO USNH Staff Administer Influenza Vaccine

MC2(SW/AW) Justin Ailes

Gazette Editor

U.S. Naval Hospital (USNH) personnel at Naval Station (NS) Guantanamo Bay, Cuba administered influenza vaccinations for active-duty military personnel Oct. 5, on base.

The mandatory combined H1N1 and seasonal influenza vaccine was offered to combat the spread of the virus during the flu season which usually begins in October and can last until May.

"It is important for all service members to receive this vaccine to avoid getting the virus as influenza can potentially be fatal," said NS Guantanamo Bay Preventive Medicine Technician Hospital Corpsman 2nd Class Clint Messerschmidt. "Once vaccinated, the human body builds immunities to counteract the effects of influenza, if you are to come in contact with the virus."

Service members were required to fill out a medical questionnaire, and depending on their answers, were provided either the injectable or inter-nasal mist vaccine.

"Administering the vaccine is a precautionary measure to prevent the symptoms of influenza," said Messerschmidt. "Keeping the community healthy is a top priority during the flu season."

Hospital Corpsman Seaman Eric Gestring administers the inter-nasal H1N1/Seasonal flu vaccination to Personnel Specialist Seaman Nyome Algarin at the Windjammer Ballroom, Oct. 5.

MC2(SW/AW) Justin Ailes

Gazette Editor

Naval Station (NS) Guantanamo Bay, Cuba's Port Operations department hosted a SCUBA safety stand down and registration review in the Bulkeley Hall auditorium, Oct. 7.

The safety stand down "straggler-session" was presented to increase recreational diver safety awareness.

"The stand down covered recreational diving rules and regulations along with beach boundaries, take limits, spearfishing safety, and consequences for violating those rules and regulations," said Port Operations Assistant Leading Petty Officer Boatswain's Mate First Class Lisa Alkire. "This safety training was offered for those registered and non-registered recreational divers who did not attend the previous stand down in Sept."

Alkire said this stand down was the final training session for the year, reinforcing the naval station's policies and guidelines for recreational SCUBA divers.

"Registered recreational divers who did not attend this session will have to come to Port Operations and be given the brief one-on-one before they are allowed to dive again," said Alkire.

GTMO Promotes Energy Awareness Month, Energy Conservation

MC2(SW/AW) Justin Ailes

Gazette Editor

Naval Station (NS) Guantanamo Bay, Cuba will observe Energy Awareness Month Oct. 1-31, on base.

This year's Energy Awareness Month themed "Turn Words into Action; Turn Action into Results," is designed to promote energy conservation for base residents.

"GTMO is an isolated base and produces all of its own electricity and water," said NS Guantanamo Bay Resource Efficiency Manager Tim Wagoner. "It is everyone's responsibility to conserve whenever possible."

Wagoner said base residents will be offered numerous displays during the month providing the community with tips on efficient water consumption, energy and lighting use.

Energy Awareness Month centers on achieving a clean and secure energy economy, while saving taxpayer dollars, by turning awareness into action, intent into investment, and opportunities into outcomes.

"Get into the habit of turning off the lights when you leave a room," advised Wagoner. "Simple things like repairing a leaky faucet or turning off the water when brushing your teeth can make a tremendous difference in energy use."

President George Bush proclaimed October as Energy Awareness Month Sept. 13, 1991. Since then, the Department of Energy has conducted energy awareness campaigns annually to promote the wise and efficient use of our nation's energy.

GTMO Columbia College Chapter Commence Class Session Registration, Provide Student Resources

MC2(SW/AW) Justin Ailes

Gazette Editor

The Columbia College chapter at Naval Station (NS) Guantanamo Bay, Cuba will commence class session registration until Oct. 28.

Registration is being held for Oct.-Dec. in-seat classes (Music, Algebra, Spanish) as well as hundreds of online courses in all subjects.

"For active duty students, a new fiscal year began on October 1st," said NS Guantanamo Bay Columbia College Director Michael Matheny. "That means a fresh allocation of Tuition Assistance benefits are available as an added value to their compensation; a value that is free to access."

Columbia College, located in NS Guantanamo Bay's Chapel Annex, provide student support in college level testing as well as support for students attending other colleges through test proctoring services.

"We are an excellent resource for the base community, and making progress on higher education goals is a fantastic way to be positive and productive while stationed here," said Matheny. "We have wonderful offices, classrooms, and computer lab facilities for the benefit of students engaged in the college experience."

For initial advising, Navy personnel need to contact the Navy College Office via email NCO.Kingsbay@Navy.mil. The admissions process is completed with an online on Columbia College's website www.ccis.edu/apply. Army personnel may apply at www.goarmyed.com.

"I have a firm belief that going to school is an important component that supports positive morale in this community," said Matheny. "Having a college degree opens up employment opportunities and makes an individual more versatile and marketable in jobs they can qualify for as they transition from duty station to duty station. Academic accomplishment pays off through increased personal confidence, career path options, and opportunities for promotion and rank advancement."

Matheny said not only do classes benefit a student, but so too does the variety of academic support services provided by the local campus office and professional staff.

The advising process supports students in all areas, including the application process for tuition assistance and financial aid, degree selection, career exploration, and placement/proficiency testing. Columbia College also conducts academic skill building workshops and hosts a new student orientation twice a year.

CONDUCT OIL SPILL RESPONSE TRAINING

MC2(SW/AW) Justin Ailes

Gazette Editor

Naval Station (NS) Guantanamo Bay, Cuba's Port Operations department conducted an "Oil Spill Response" drill, Oct. 6.

The monthly training is designed to synchronize proper clean-up and disposal methods between NS Guantanamo Bay Environmental Management and Port Operation departments, in the event of an actual environmental mishap.

"By simulating an oil spill casualty, we ensure our response time and removal methods are effective in the event of an oil spill mishap," said Maintenance and

Material Manager (3MC) Chief Hull Technician Guy Kuhl. "It's important for our Sailors to support the Environmental Management contractors during an actual casualty, maintaining the base's oil spill response plan."

The training scenario utilized "skimmer" small boats for waste collection, and waste disposal "pumper trucks" for waste removal.

"If there is ever an oil spill here, clean-up will be an all-hands effort," said Kuhl. "This training prepares our Sailors and contractors, making sure we know what we're doing."

SAFETY DEPARTMENT DID-YA-KNOW

Did you know that the leading cause of recreational mishaps is pick-up basketball games? How does Safety know this? "Trend analysis". How does Safety track trends? Via mishap reporting. Safety does not just track catastrophic mishaps. Safety tries to track all mishaps. If you've visited a doctor or were treated on the spot, a mishap report should be submitted. This allows Safety to track any trends. Safety in GTMO noticed a trend of divers not calling in and securing dive plans. A Safety Stand-down revealed that a number of individuals did not understand the rules. This misunderstanding could have resulted in a mishap. Mishaps can be reported via ESAMS, USNH emergency room records, in person, or via supervisor. All work related mishaps are reported to the Occupational Safety & Health Administration annually. This report is also posted in the Safety Office from February - April of the following year. Mishap reporting is our business, and we want to know. If you are injured on or off the job, let Safety or your supervisor know. Your supervisor should contact Safety or report via the proper channels. This is not limited to NAVSTA personnel. This is for all personnel in GTMO not matter the command.

GTMO Fire Department To Host Fire Prevention Week

MC2(SW/AW) Justin Ailes

Gazette Editor

The Fire Department at Naval Station (NS) Guantanamo Bay, Cuba is hosting "Fire Prevention Week" (FPW), Oct. 10-14, on base.

"Fire Prevention Week" is an annual, national campaign designed to educate community members about the dangers of fire and provide information on protecting their homes and families with life saving technology. This year's theme for the annual observance is "Protect Your Family from Fire," which will educate community members on the dangers of fire and provide information on how to be safer from fire.

"If you aren't proactive and aren't practicing simple fire safety measures, then you are placing yourself, family, friends, co-workers, and your home, workplace, or business at a higher risk of fire," said NS Guantanamo Bay Fire Department Fire Inspector Clifford Foley. "It's the simple things that we can easily neglect that can catch us by surprise when we least expect it."

During FPW, NS Guantanamo Bay's Fire Department will host a 5k run, conduct vehicle extrication and firefighting demonstrations, and provide educational information for base residents on the importance of fire prevention.

"Every 87 seconds, a home fire is reported and on average, seven people die from home fires each day," said Foley. "Practicing fire safety everyday and making fire prevention a priority could potentially save your life or the lives of others."

In collaboration with SOUTHCOM, JIATF (Joint Interagency Task Force) South and CG ALC (Aviation Logistics Command), U.S. Air Force reserve unit personnel prepare an Air Force C-5 for flight to transport a TA-35 tug boat to Cecil Field, FL., at NS Guantanamo Bay's Leeward Air Terminal, Oct. 29. The over 30,000 lbs., inoperable TA-35 tug boat was recently discovered by Leeward T-shed personnel.

Storyteller/Liar Entertains GTMO Community

MC2(SW/AW) Justin Ailes

Gazette Editor

Naval Station (NS) Guantanamo Bay, Cuba's Morale, Welfare and Recreation's (MWR) Child and Youth Programs presented storyteller Bil Lepp Sept. 29-30, on base.

Lepp performed at three venues on base, providing educational entertainment for students and community members.

"My stories aren't always completely true, but they are always based on honest experiences," said Lepp. "My goal is to provide entertainment, help people forget their troubles, and provide the audience with some memorable, humorous stories."

"He won the [WV Liars'] contest and has been honing his lying skills ever since."
-John Roach, National Geographic News

Lepp, five time champion of the West Virginia Liars' Contest, spins tales of exaggerated circumstances and was recently nominated for the 2011 National Storytelling Network Circle of Excellence Award.

"Bil Lepp is a master storyteller of tall tales," said School Liaison Officer Chris Dickson. "He is a festival favorite at storytelling events across the country and it was a great opportunity to be able to bring him here for our students and community to experience the art of storytelling."
